Dining in the Historic Hotel

MEDICINE PARK, OKLA.

HISTORY OF THE OLD PLANTATION

The Old Plantation, built in 1910, is a large three-story building, with rooms and cubbyholes throughout. The original building was constructed out of cobblestones and has had wooden additions built on since then.

In the “Roaring Twenties”, Medicine Park was “the” place to vacation for the rich and elite of society. The Plantation, which had been named “The Outside Inn”, “The Grand Hotel”, and “The Medicine Park Hotel”, was one of the two hotels in the resort town of Medicine Park. There were also many cobblestone cabins that were available for the vacationers to rent.

While Senator Thomas owned the hotel, things were run straight as an arrow. After he sold the hotel to help finance his political campaign, things were run quite a bit different.

A whiskey still was erected in the basement and there was a gambling room down there also. It has been rumored for years that a tunnel existed under the Old Plantation for quick escapes from the law. The main floor was used as a ballroom or dance floor, while the second floor was where the “pretty ladies” lived and supposedly conducted their business.

The Old Plantation changed hands several times over the years. In the early 1960’s Rex & Ruby “Grandma” Leath purchased it from the Texas Land Company. They named it The Old Plantation Restaurant. It was listed on the National Historic Register in the 1970’s. The restaurant was known for its burgers, catfish, huge sirloin steaks that “hung off the platter” and famous rolls. Rex could always be found behind the bar or in the kitchen, Grandma at someone’s table telling her tall tales, promoting Medicine Park or giving out her recipe for hot rolls. In later years, Grandma could be seen taking a break in her rocking chair next to the fireplace. Her chair remains in the Old Plantation today.
