About Horn Canna Farm

Hello! We are Dustin and Nikki Snow. We live and work with our five children on our fourth generation farm. Our family has been growing and selling cannas since 1928. We sell large, three to five eye rhizomes, the largest you will find anywhere! Every order is filled by hand just like Grandpa Horn did years ago. We love what we do and even more, we love hearing from our customers and friends on how cannas have brightened their own corner of the world. Each of us at Horn Canna Farm is committed to making your experience with us the very best it can be. It is truly our pleasure to be of service to you!

Landscaping with Cannas

Not only are cannas EASY to plant and EASY to grow, cannas love full sunlight. They are extremely versatile, providing a burst of color as an accent or planted in a mass of head turning color. Cannas add charm when planted amid grasses, trailing flowers, elephant ears, contrasting annuals and perennials, flowering trees and shrubs of all shapes and sizes. Or plant cannas in rows or borders for a more tailored look. Whether your flowerbeds are flowy and free forming or precisely planned and formal, cannas are an excellent choice to brighten any sunny spot.

Growing Information

Blooms: Cannas are the best at providing bold color throughout the summer. They are top notch for creating magnificent curb appeal even on the hottest summer days. Cannas bloom in large clusters. As blooms wither, new buds are already forming within the stalk. This allows the plants to be in continuous bloom from July until frost. Cannas bloom in colors of red, yellow, pink and orange.

the rhizome horizontally with the eyes up. And no worries if you cannot determine if the eyes are up or down as the cannas will find their way to the heat at the soil's surface. Only cover the rhizome with one or two inches of soil. This is important! Some gardeners plant cannas deeper than recommended in an attempt to better overwinter cannas left in the ground. Planting cannas too deep will only prolong sprouting and possibly cause the plants to not grow.

Foliage: Cannas make a big statement with their lush, tropical foliage. Foliage color varies from several hues of green to shades of purple, red, bronze and chocolate. To add even more intrigue we offer three varieties with variegated foliage. Some of our giant cannas produce extremely large, wide banana-like leaves, creating dramatic vertical interest in your flowerbeds.

Watering and Fertilizing: Cannas should be thoroughly watered one to two times a week by slowly soaking the ground. During the hottest weeks of the summer your cannas will thrive with a deep soaking several times each week. Cannas are tropical and love plenty of heat and water. For added performance apply a high nitrogen fertilizer two or three times during the growing season. Deadheading cannas is easy and gives your flowerbed a tidy appearance. Simply cut off the spent bloom just below the spent bloom head. There are future blooms developing within the stalk!

Planting: Cannas are best planted in the spring after danger from frost. Ideally cannas are planted when soil temperatures are around 60 degrees. Best results are achieved when planted in loose, fertile and well-draining soil. Amend the soil, if necessary, with composted organic matter. Plant in a sunny location that receives a minimum of four hours of direct sunlight. Full sun is great! Plant the rhizomes 12 to 18 inches apart. Lay the long part of Self Cleaning Blooms: Six of our varieties are also considered self-cleaning. This means the spent blooms drop by themselves and do not require as much deadheading.

Our Guarantee

As always, we guarantee all bulbs to be healthy, of excellent quality and true to name. Orders are quality checked at the time of shipment. If bulbs decline during shipment, please notify us immediately. We will gladly remedy the problem. Our goal is to not only provide outstanding customer service at the time you place an order and receive your cannas, but to also be your source of information throughout the growing seasons.

Welcome!
Thank you for your interest in our cannas. Our story began in the 1920's when Dustin's great grandmother received six canna bulbs as a gift. Four generations and 90 years later, our family grows and sells the highest quality and largest canna bulbs you will find. And since you're buying direct from the grower with no middle man, you'll love receiving big and fresh bulbs. We fill and pack every order by hand with the greatest of care for both our bulbs and our customers – YOU!

Cannas are easy to plant, easy to grow and love full sunlight. Tropical hues and exotic forms make them extremely versatile, providing a single accenting color burst or a head-turning solid color block when planted in a mass. Cannas are charming tucked amid grasses, trailing flowers, elephant ears, contrasting annuals and perennials, flowering trees and shrubs. For a more tailored look, plant them in rows or borders. Whether creating a flowy, free-forming flowerbed or one that is more formal and precisely planned, cannas are an excellent choice to brighten and fill any sunny spot.

Cannas also bloom generously in containers, making them a great option for porches, decks and sunny apartment balconies. Cannas can even add a bold tropical flair to water gardens. Multi-hued blooms from July to frost are easy to have just about anywhere with carefree cannas!

A free planting guide is included with each order. If you are interested in large quantities, visit the 'Available in Bulk' page of our website or give us a call.

Be sure to check out Durban, which is new this season. And we are very excited to say "Welcome back!" to a few that have been missing for awhile: Cleopatra, Black Knight, Miss Oklahoma and Maudie Malcom.

As always, we guarantee all varieties are true to name. Order as early as possible as some of them sell out quickly each season.

If we have had the privilege of serving you in the past, thank you! If you have not ordered from us, we hope you will give us a try. We are more than happy to answer questions or offer suggestions. We really enjoy talking with our customers so when you call, we're usually the ones answering! We look forward to serving you this coming spring!

Kindest regards,

Dustin & Nikki Snow
